Dear Sir:

I am a possessor of two coins, and for which I would like very much to receive information on. A Greek silber coin (Dekadraehm of Syracuse B.C. 405-345) and the other a Roman coin (Great Bronze of Domitian 81-96 A.D.) I would very much appreciate knowing their worth and whether this place buys any coins or not.

I thank you.

Very truly yours,
Miss Nota Brimhall

Dear Madam:

We can tell you absolutely nothing about your coins without seeing them. There are many imitations of the decadrachm of Syracuse and among the genuine ones there are many varieties, ofll rare, but some rarer than others. Also, the condition plays a very important part in their price. The same applies to the coin of Domitian, which however is not rare. If you care to send them on we can tell you better.

Very truly yours,

HW:JG
